THREE IN THE RACE FOR THE PRESIDENCY

The Georgia State Agricultural Society

SESSION IN THE CLASSIC CITY The Presidential Campaign Is

Lively. THE DELEGATES ARE POURING IN

Georgia State Agricultural Society will meet in the morning at the [college chapel, with a full attendance.

The noon train today brought over one hun-dred delegates into the city dred delegates into the city, who were shown to the places assigned them. Tonight almost as large a number came, and at the meeting tomorrow there will be not less than two hun

THE PRESIDENCY DISCUSSED. The delegates had hardly reached the Com before the question of the election of resident came up and was discussed among There are two avowed candidates in the field against Colonel Waddell, the present ent. The noon train brought those two into Athens, and they were on the field in advance of Colonel Waddell, who arrived to night. These two gentlemen are Messrs. A. Q. Moody, of Thomas, and John A. Cobb, of ter. Both are confident of polling trong vote, and holding the winning cards Both are from south Georgia, and between them will divide the south Georgia votes. nel Waddell has strength among these ates also. Captain Cobb was mixing with his friends and was making hay while the sun shone. He is very strong with the delegates of south and southwestern Georgia, and will doubtless carry a good many votes from the delegates of st Georgia, he having been born and reared to manhood in this section.

Colonel Waddell was seen as soon as he ar rived tonight, and was asked whether or not he was in the race for the presidency. "I see no reason why I should not be."

"Yes," said he, "I am in the race to stay."
"And you'll win," said an ardent supporter of the colonel's near by.

A smile appeared on Colonel Waddell's face hat meant he was full of fight for the presidency, and so it is a triangular race to the finish, a long, hard contest, in which there can be no predictions at present. The fight will not be a sectional strictly, as the different candidates will walk into each other's territory to a greater or less degree. It will be an interesting race.
The delegates are all talking it, and Cobb, Moody and Waddell seem to be the only hames upon the lips of those around the hotel noon, going through Cobbham and over the conievard on the electric railway. The uniersity grounds were also viewed. Congressman Livingston is here, and mixing Governor Northen has not yet arrived in the mity, but is expected. EXECUTIVE SESSION.

The executive committee was called to order President Waddell at 8 o'clock, in the parors of the Commercial. A full attendance was cass some private business. The meeting was held with closed doors, and the reporters were

To-morrow morning at 9 o'clock the old chapel bell will ring the announcement of meet-lng time. Delegates will assemble in the college chapel. A general invitation having been extended to the citizens and general public, there will be quite a large audience present at the opening of the convention City Attorney J. W. Cobb, Colonel E. K umpkin, Dr. H. C. White and Chancelle W. E. Boggs, will deliver short addresses of which will be responded to by A. O.

REGULAR PROGRAMME. Then the regular programme will be taken as published in today's Constitution. The convention promises to be one of the most interesting ever held in the history of this lociety. The subjects to be discussed, the s to be settled, the steps to be taken, are all of interest to the people of the state, and the treatment they will receive at the hands of the convention will be looked for ward to with great interest. The personnel of the delegates is very striking. They are, for the most part, stalwart, bronze-faced men, elligence deep seated on their very fea tures. It is one of the most representative bodies ever gathered together in Athens, and its delibrations will be watched with interest.

The Result of the Committee Meeting. The meeting of the executive committee of the agricultural society tonight was long but not loud. The meeting adjourned at fifteen ninutes past 12 o'clock without having ac tomplished anything. It was learned that the whole session was devoted acclusively to the state fair question, and that quite a spirited debate took place ove t. Opinions on the subject were various, and the committee was badly split upon it. A motion was made to refuse to hold the fair, and t brought the fight on in a moment. After sengthy discussion, in which the entire matter estpone action on the subject until tomorrow night, until Mayor Price and his committee from Macon could get here and give their side. This was carried, and Mayor Price was telegraphed for He and his committee will arrive tomorrow night. Then the fight will be on again. The committee was pretty evenly divided on the first motion, but the prevailing impression seems to be that unless Mayor Price comes up to the flemands of the fair committee, and pays the bills, there will be no fair held at Macon this year.

The presidential fight is waxing warm. Developments show that the Cobb and Moody forces are pretty solidly against Waddell/ and that in the event either of the two should retire, his support would go to the other.

The secretary and treasurer were not elected at the meeting of the committee tonight. They will be elected tomorrow night. Treasurer Powell has no opposition as yet, but several are after Secretary Jemison's place. Dr. Samuel Hape, Dr. L. B. Clifton and Dr. E. D. Newton are most prominently mentioned. As Samuel Hape, Dr. L. B. Clifton and Dr. D. D. Newton are most prominently mentioned. As in other matters, the committee is badly split here. Tomorrow will bring forth some racy developments, and if the committee fails to title the fair question it will be thrown into convention for a solution.

RICHMOND AT WORK. Trying to Secure the West Point Terminal Headquarters.

RICHMOND, Va., August 11.—[Special.]—At the instance of the Chamber of Commerce the proper officers of that body have written the president, J. H. Inman, of the Richmond and president, J. H. RICHMOND, Va., August 11.—[Special.]—
The question of the removal of the general offices of the Bichmond and Danville railroad to Atlanta has been definitely fixed. The committee on inland trade of the Richmond Chamber of Commerce has been in corresponence with President Inman and other officials of the Danville system for some time, trying to influence them to reconsider their determination to carry all of the offices to Georgia's capital. The result of this correspondence is that the office of Traffic Manager Haas will be taken to Atlanta, and that of General Freight Agent Drake will remain here, and he will have au thority to make traffic arrangements. Superintendent Emerson will also remain here an with enlarged powers. The management insists that it is necessary to have the manager's office in Atlanta, where all the branches of the Terminal system radiate.

CUTTING DOWN ON LABOR. A General Reduction of Time on the Richmond Terminal. COLUMBIA, S. C., August 11.-[Special.]-Master Mechanic Green, of the Richmond and Danville railroad shops in this city, who has just returned from a conference with the authorities at Washington, brings unwelcome news for many hundred employes. He says it has been decided, in order to cut down the heavy expenses of the system, to shut down all the big shops owned by it, from one end of the line to another, a week out of every month until further action is taken. The total saving to the company per month on all its shops will be about one hundred thousand dollars. The Columbia shops have a pay roll of about sixteen thousand dollars per cent of it is spent right here in the city This cut down of one-fourth will, therefore, be pretty generally felt, not only here, but in other cities, as some of the other shops are

WINDSTORM IN MICHIGAN.

Great Damage Done in a Short Space of PORT HURON, Mich., August 11 .- One of the most destructive windstorms that ever visited this section of the state struck Sanilac and Tuscalo counties yesterday morning, con-tinuing for only about thirty minutes, but At Minden City it blew down the Huron and Sanilac Insurance Company's big building and carried the heavy roof 200 feet. The front of Springer & Co.'s store was blown in and the stock badly damaged. Wright's photograph gallery was destroyed; R. B. Wilson's foundry was wrecked, and William Johnson's residence was blown down and a three-year-old child fatally injured.

At Tyre George Souls's house was struck by lightning and destroyed, and Henry At Gladwin a big baru on the famous Mc-Gregor farm was struck by lightning and es are very numerous. There is not a farmer within a radius of forty miles of Minden City who has not suffered. The damage to crops is very great, and the total losses will foot up over fifty thousand dollars.

RECORD OF THE FLAMES.

Damage to Camp Douglas, Wis., by Fire.

Soldiers Do Good Work.

New Lisbon, Wis., August 11.—Camp Douglas, Wis., is in ruins. At 9 o'clock last evening, the cry of fire was raised. It seems that a lamp exploded in Buffmyer's saloon, but the fiames had been nearly smothered and, thinking that all was over, the crowd left. The fire took a new start, however, and in about ten minutes was beyond control. The fire spread rapidly throughout the business portion till it reached Camp Douglas hotel. It then crossed the Omaha tracks and set fire to the Commercial house and depot. Although all this happened in a very few minutes, the soldiers out at their camp had been notified and had assembled, and succeeded in saving nearly all the goods in the hotel and stores, besides the whole of the business part of the village. Many dwelling houses were burned, there being nothing left but a few residences in the southwestern part of the town. The wind blew from the south and kept the fire burning so rapidly that the fire engines from Mamston and Tomeh, which had been sent for as soon as it was evident that the fire had a good start, reached there too late. The total loss is estimated at about one hundred and fifty thousand dollars. Telegraph lines and railroad tracks are in such a condition that they cannot be used.

A Hotel Keeper Skips. MIDDLESBOROUGH, Ky., August 11.—[Special.]—The intense hot weather of the past few days appears to have forced S. E. Bickford, proprietor of the Park Place hotel, of thiscity, to seek the cooler clime of his native state, to seek the cooler clime of his native state, Michigan, where, upon the borders of the great lake, he can pass in review his but too short stay in the mountainous region. The gay Bickford came here from Michigan a few months ago and leased the Park Place hotel, a fashionable resort, which was patronized by many of the best families in town. Bickford made money, but he hated to pay his bills, and so last evening he decamped, taking with him his wife and all he possessed, leaving behind him a number of cooks, maids and waiters, to whom he owed a month's wages, and some whom he owed a month's wages, and some twenty to thirty creditors with accounts agains im aggregating $2,000.

Jackson, Miss., August 11.—[Special.]— Referring to the editorial in The Constiturion, relative to the position of Congressman of your correspondent how Judge Crisp stood in this state, and expressed the hope that all the Mississippi congressmen were of the same mind as Private John Allen, whose declaration for Crisp had only a short while before been printed in The Constitution. He seemed to be enthusiastic for Crisp.

The president's annual address is reported to be a carefully prepared and able document. He reviewed the history of the state organizaon, advocated minor changes in the state co stitution, outlined the policy of the organizaion and closed with a strong presentation of the duty of membership.

This afternoon at 4 o'clock President Polk ballroom of the Atlantic hotel. It was a powerful speech, and one of the happiest efforts of his life. passage of a resolution endorsing the Ocala platform, which was done with little discussion and no opposition.

A resolution was introduced endorsing the call of the national alliance for a conference of labor organizations in Washington in February. The resolution also pledged the alliance of Alabama to abide by the decision of that conference. The latter clause provoked many speeches, all of which were opposed to it. The speakers argued against third party in Alabama and against binding the alliance to the result of a conference which might adopt such a course. The vote in favor of striking out the clause was unanimous, even the delegates from Geneva, the one county whose lelegates from Geneva, the one county, whose alliance has declared for a third party, giving its vote against the pledge. The resolution, as amended, was endorsed and the call for a con-ference without any pledge to abide by its de-cision was unanimously passed. The People's Party.

TOPEKA, Kan., August 11 .- [Special.]-This has been a great day for the people's party. The call for a meeting of the state central committee brought over one hundred leading members of that party to confer and prepare for the local fall campaign. The feeling prevails that if the vote of the party polled last November is not maintained next November. the alliance would from that time on lose in strength and power, not only lose its strength in Kansas, but all over the union. One member said that the whole country was looking to Kansas to keep the people's party movement to the front, for if it should show a falling off this year it would be impossible to regain lost ground next year, when a hot presidential contest was appealing to voters to return to their old par-ties. A proposition is being considered to raise a fund of $75,000 by assessments to stablish a daily paper here.

WHAT CONSTITUTES CONTEMPT.

Judge in Montana Vindicates the Rights of Newspapers to Publish the News.

HELENA, Mont., August 11 .- The supreme ourt of Montana has vindicated the right a newspaper to publish the news. Judge Mc Hatton, of Butte, recently ordered Editor J. A. MacKnight, of The Herald-Journal, to an pear before him for publishing in a gossipy article the words of an old Montanian to the effect that the Davis will contestants could not get an impartial trial before any judge or jury in Butte, where the vast estate lies, and from which it would be removed if the contest is successful.

The court held that the contempt of court is confined almost exclusively to acts that interrupt the progress of the business of the

between the rights of a citizen and the power of the court summarily to imprison on the charge of contempt. The power is given to the court to enforce obedience and respect for the authority of the court. It is not to enforce sentimental respect, for that must be gained by other means, and will come to the court where law and order are administered with able, fearless and impartial fidelity." The prisoners were ordered discharged.

New York, August 11.—Futures opened quiet soon made a slight advance, relapsed into duli-ness, closing quiet and steady at two points deness, closing quiet and steady at two points de-cline on August and two to three points advance on other months from yesterday's closing prices. The market today was a narrow one. Liverpood made a very full response to our decline of yes-terday, but our bears were too timid to go on and it was soon apparent that they had a little oversold the market yesterday. In getting back their cotton they worked up prices a little. Be-side, the bdlls were inclined to assert that the full text of the bureau report did not sustain its con-clusions, but the very favorable weather for the growing crop prevented them from getting much comfort from this assertion. New ootton arrived pretty ireely at Galveston and some other ports.

SOUTH CAROLINA'S PARALLEL TO THE BAKER CASE.

in Order that She Might Become the Wife o a Neighbor Who Sat Up with Her to Witness the Contortions of the Dying Man.

COLUMBIA, S. C., August 11.-[Special. extraordinary interest is being man throughout this state in the case of David Jacobs and Mary Johnson, both white, of Chesterfield county, who are sentenced to be hanged on Friday for the murder of William Johnson, the husband of Mary.

The convicted couple were formerly well thought of in Chesterfield, and great pressure is being brought to bear upon Governor Tillman to commute their sentences to life im-

Briefly stated, the testimony stated that Mrs. Mary Johnson, who was infatuated with David Jacobs, poisoned her husband, the poison being furnished by Jacobs. They have constantly denied the crime, and there is a story on good authority that the convicted parspiritual adviser, Rev. Mr. Yonge, is so firmly convinced of their innocence that he has taken an active part in securing signatures to the petitions for executive clemency

On the other hand, both the judge and the state's solicitor recommend that the law be allowed to take its course. The solicitor, in his report to the governor, gives the following interesting particulars of the case:

The jury stood ten for conviction and two against at the mistrial. The jury convicted th defendants at the last trial. It was foul and most deliberate murder by the most despicable means—poison administered pur posely in shape of quinine as medicine. Strychnine was found in Jacobs's possession. He first denied having it at the inquest, but afterwards at the inquest said it was to kill crows. He made a bad showing on the stand. There is not a mitigating circumstance for

When the spasms commenced, Mary blew a horn and Jacobs appeared on the scene, and she sat near by the dying man, and both advised against sending for a doctor, and both objected to an inquest and a post-mortem. They endeavored to have a hasty interment other the night of the death. They whispered to each other the afternoon before the fatal dose was given. Jacobs sai up unusually late, and apparently waited for horn to blow. It was a horrible case Jacobs was really a principal, as he was presfor a doctor, and would not, evidently, relieve the sufferer if he could, and sat there gloating over the death as chief "fingersmith" in the job. It is expected that the governor will announce his decision in the case tomorrow.

THE BAKER-GILMER CASE. BRISTOL, Tenn., August 11.—Special.]— The Baker-Gilmer trial will come to a close norrow afternoon, and the life of Dr. John A. P. Baker will be put in the hands of twelve of his countrymen. Hons. D. F. Bailey and John Burson, of Bristol, occupied this day in speeches, pro and con, and Dan Brigg, of Abingdon, will speak tonight. Only two more speeches are to be made tomorrow. The jury will probably not decide the matter before Thursday morning.

A CITY COUNCIL IN DANGER.

Citizens Hold a Mass Meeting and Make Threats Against Their City Fathers. KANSAS CITY, August 11 .- The mayor and city council barely escaped vengeance last night at the hands of a crowd of 800 taxpayers. The excitement arose over a proposition of the city council to purchase the plant of the Cousolidated Electric Light and Power Company for $340,000. There was much public indigna tion over the proposition, it being believed by many that improper inducements had been offered to members of the council to pass as ordinance authorizing the purchase.

The indignation culminated last night, when mass meeting of taxpayers was held to protest against the proposed purchase. The meeting was in charge of Hon. John B. Scroggs, head of the Kansas City, Kan., bar.

Several intemperate speeches were made, and finally Scroggs addressed a crowd from the courthouse steps. He denounced in bitter lan-guage the proposed action of the council. Finally a committee of fifteen was appointed to call at the council chamber and present a protest before the ordinance could be passed. The crowd, by its own motion, joined was taken up. As the march proceeded the excitement grew until the terings of the crowd became more loud and bitter and finally culminated in shouts of "Lynch them!" and "Hang them!" The crowd had worked itself up to a high pitch of indignation, when the city hall was reached. In the meantime the council had been informed of the progress of the mob, and a hasty adjournment was taken. The last alderman had barely beat a rapid retreat into the chamber, only to be disappoi finding it empty. The crowd resolved itself into a mass meeting again and more speeches were made, the mayor and city council being denominated as cowards and thieves. Finally the mob dispersed without doing any damage

ALEXIS IN PARIS

The Grand Duke Did Not Desire an Official Reception.

Paris, August 11.—There is scarcely a doubt that the non-arrival in this city yesterday of the Grand Duke Alexis was entirely due to his disinclination to be the recipient of the enthusiastic welcome that the citizens of Paris had prepared for him. Great crowds of people gathered at the railway station where he wa expected to arrive, and much disappointment was manifested when it was learned that the grand duke had changed his plans and would not arrive at the time originally set. So sure were the Parisians that the grand duke would reach the city at the time appointed that a number of houses and cafe long the route from the railway station were beautifully decorated and illuminated in his honor. The crowd learned that he would not arrive yesterday, but they did not learn when he would reach Paris, and consequently into the station at 8:45 o'clock this morning, no one was present, officially or unofficially to receive him. So adverse was the grand duke to undergoing an official reception that even members of the Russian embassy had no official information as to the exact time of his arrival, and he, therefore, alighted from the train exactly as a private individual would have done. But as he reached the platform, he was recognized by a crowd comprising at least a thousand persons, who had just arrived on incoming trains, or who were awaiting the departure of trains for various points to which they were bound. The greeting they gave the grand duke was enthusiastic. They cheered and yelled, waved handkerinto the station at 8:45 o'clock this morning They cheered and yelled, waved handker chiefs and hats, and above the din could be heards cries of "Vive le Czar!" "Vive la Russie!" The grand duke, bowing and smiling at the warmness of his welcome, despite his attempt to avoid it, passed along the platform and, leaving the station, entered a carriage and was immediately driven to his hotel.

BACKER'S SHREWDNESS

In Unloading His Callaterals Upon the New York Banks.

NEW YORK, August 41.—Hearing in the action brought in the supreme court by the Myer brothers through their lawyers, Guggenheimer & Untermeyer, for anjinjunction to restrain the sale of securities belonging to the plaintiff which, it is alleged, have been wrong-fully converted by Abraham Backer, has been adjourned, so far as the Central National bank is concerned, from Wednesday until Friday of this week. Samuel Untermeyer said yesterday that since the Friday of this week. Samuel Untermeyer said yesterday that since the action had been begun very many other creditors had come forward with claims against Backer, similar to those of Myer Brothers. The collaterals furmished Backer by these creditors, and which it was alleged the latter had misappropriated, would, he thought, amount close upon two hundred thousand dollars, making a total of claims against Backer from these sources alone in the neighborhood of three hundred thousand dollars; it might reach three hundred and fifty thousand dollars. The injunction still remained in force, Mr. Untermeyer said, and it was probable that the hearing, so far as it related to the Merchants' National bank, would be had tomorrow, the date for which it was originally noticed. I was reported yesterday that the loans made to Backer by the banks of this city amounted to about one million six hundred thousand dol lars. On these loans the banks are secured by

EFFECTS OF THE TARIFF

GREMAN WORKMEN STARVING TO

AND THEY WILL EMIGRATE TO AMERICA

And Enter Into Competition with the American Workingmen in the Factories—Re-sult of the Investigation.

BERLIN, August 11 .- For the purpose of studying the actual effects of the McKinley bill, as far as such effects could show themselves within the comparatively short time since the law became operative, an Associated Press correspondent has visited some of the most important centers of Germany, such as Leipsic, Chemnitz, Plauen, Greiz, Nouremberg and Frankfort. From other important points) he has received reports of men thoroughly familiar with the affairs of the different districts. They all agree that the points] he has received reports of men thoroughly familiar with the affairs of the different districts. They all agree that the measure has had a paralyzing effect upon certain industries, while others, equally highly taxed, have not suffered at all.

Of all industrial centers in Germany, perhaps in Europe, Chemnitz, the thriving manufacturing city of Saxony and the district surrounding it, have suffered the most. The principal industry of Chemnitz is the manufacture of knitted goods, (especially of heaiery. There are 250 manufacturers of hosiery in the city. Numerous dye works, commission houses, brokers, spinners, etc., are interested in this trade. Many thousand skilled workmen employed in "house industry" depended upon it for a living. The McKinley bill came and trade languished. Experts, which in 1889-'90, had amounted to $11,385,533, diminished to $8,454,023 in 1890-'91, a falling off of nearly three million dollars. Without the heavy exports of the first quarter of this fiscal year (July 1st to September 30, 1890,) the decrease would have been still greater.

Many Chemnitz manufacturers say that the present dullness is only the consequence of last year's overproduction, but if the tariff is not reduced they fear that in the future they cannot manufacture at a profit, and that factories springing up in America will deprive them completely of trade. One of the largest manufacturers, who asked that his name be withheld because he feared the wrath of his townsmen, said he had sent a number of his best young men to America for the purpose of initiating them into the American business ways as he thought seriously of putting up a factory somewhere in the United States. Busines here is done in a peculiar way. Goods before reaching a buyer pass through many hands. Throughout the large district of many square miles are scattered the dwellings of single weavers—"household industry" people. These receive yarn from the factor, who sells them to the manufacturer. The manufacturer "fashions" them and then turns them ov

All the men visited were intelligent, self-respecting and industrious. Their earnings at present average from $1.50 to $2 a week. One of them, a man with a wife and four children, was asked how he managed to get along. "Well, we don't," he replied with a sad smile, "Most of us had something laid by better days. We used that up. Almost everybody has his little house and bit of farming land. We have mortgaged that. We still have our looms left, which are worth from two hundred and fifty to three hundred dollars, but if we should mortgage those the end would be near. Things cannot last much longer this way."

These people live almost entirely on potatoes and rye bread. At the present high prices of food staples in Germany, they get scarcely enough of these. It is understood that there is some movement on foot to induce those people to emigrate to America and to establish their industry there. They would form a desirable class of citizens who would eventually add much to the manufacturing wealth of the United States. But on the other hand the opponents of protection VISITING THE WORKINGMEN.

would eventually add much to the manufac-turing wealth of the United States. But on the other hand the opponents of protection claim that factories cannot be established there to compete with European prices, and that these people once in America, would leave their "household industry" and rush in existing factories and mills, thus competing with those already employed. That is a que-tion to be settled in the United States.

tion to be settled in the United States.

Quite different is the state of affairs at Annaberg, an industrial town in Erzegebirge, where the house industry also flourishes. This is the fashion district in Germany. Lace and trimmings and embroideries are the main staples, an industry established in 1861, by Barbara Mann. Here, though the tariff has been raised, expert to America has doubled since the existence of the McKinley bill. Owing to the cheapness of labor and the complicated system of manufacturing, artistic marking is done in Annaberg, bleaching on Bohemia,) this industry could under no circumstances be transported to America.

could under no circumstances be transported to America.

Plaven in Saxony, is the center of a great manufacturing district. Woolen dress goods are the main article of exportation.

Suffering among the half-paid or entirely unemployed workmen in this district is even worse than in Chemnitz. The people look pale and starved, and the destitution is said to be very great indeed.

At Nuremberg and Fuerth the main staple of export is plate glass, mirrors and window glass.

At Nuremberg and Fuerth the main staple of export is plate glass, mirrors and window glass.

Fuerth exported of this article $896,198, and Nuremberg $1,326,505 worth during the calendar year 1890. This branch of trade is commencing to feel the influence of the McKinley bill, but so far not to a very great extent. No disposition is manifested at either of these places to transfer the manufactures to America. The same holds true of bronze powder and metal, of which nearly seven hundred thousand worth was exported during the same period.

The manufacturers have practically a monopoly of these articles, and say they do not feel inclined to transfer the base of their operations, especially as they expect a speedy repeal or change of the tariff laws. The next important article of export from Nuremberg consists of brushes and hairpencils. I understand that an effort has been made by a Nuremberg firm to manufactures coarser grades in America. Finer goods are still made here. Nuremberg seems to be less affected by the tariff changes than any place visited.

Frankfort exports mostly chemicals (especially antipyrin.) Rhine wine, jewelry, platenum wire and raw and prepared hair. In some of these articles an increase has taken place during the last six menths; in others a slight decrease has manifested itself. The manufacturers say that it is too early to form a decided opinion on the effects of the McKinley bill.

COMPETITIVE DRILLS IN AMERICUS. Sergeant Linn Fort Wins the Gold Medal.

A Large Crowd Present.

Americus, Ga., August 11.—[Special.]—A large crowd gathered in front of the courthouse this afternoon to witness the first of a series of competitive drills, which will be given by the Americus Light Infantry from time to time. Twenty members entered, and, in the absence of Captain H. C. Bagley, were drilled by Lieutenant Harper, with Lieutenants Mathews and Lark as judges. After twenty minutes' hard drilling, all of the men dropped out except Mr. Robert Maynard and Sergeant Linn Fort. Then there was a hot contest between these two, when Maynard dropped out, leaving Sergeant Fort the winner of the gold medal, which was presented by Colonel W. K. Wheatley. Now, if Sergeant Fort can win this medal three times, he will be entitled to the elegant silver service, which comes to the fortunate man who comes out best in three drills. The affair was a brilliant one, and much enjoyed by the friends of the boys. A Large Crowd Present.

Thieving Darkies.

Jackson, Ga., August 11.—[Special.]—This was a field day in the county courts of Butts. During a recent protracted meeting at a country church near Jackson, the buggles were rified of whips, robes and cushions by the wholesale. A regular band of thieving darkies had been organized for the occasion. As the result of the investigation of the matter by our able and efficient lawyer, Colonel Y. A. Wright, who represented the state in the several cases, five heavy sentences were passed by Judge Bailey on the offenders.

The people of Butts are proud of their county court and its able judge. A bill is now pending in the legislature providing for a solicitor for this court. Colonel Wright will be an applicant, and certainly the interests of the court and the county demand his appointment.

After Four Years Aleck Morris Will Be Tried for Murder.

Tried for Murder.

Madison, Ga., August 11.—After four years of freedom from the clutches of the law, Aleck Morris, the murderer, upon whose hands rests the blood of two innocent beings, is to be brought back to the scene of the killing. Morris is now in jall in Savannah, and in answer to a telegram Sheriff Fears will leave here tomorrow to bring him to this city.

In March, 1888, Aleck Morris and his wife quarreled. They separated, and remained apart for some time. Finally, however, Aleck became penitent and his wife again received him, much against the wishes of her father and mother, Dan Lockett and his wife. One night Aleck slept in the house with the three, and while they slept, he planned to take their lives. In the early hours of the morning Aleck arose, and with a knife cut the old man's throat from ear to ear, served his mother-in-law in the same way, and tried to kill his wife.

Thinking she, too, was dead, the murder Thinking she, too, was dead, the murderer helped himself to whatever he wanted in the house and left for parts unknown. The outraged people arose in their might and searched for the fiend, but to no avail. A reward of $2,500 was offered by the governor, which was augmented by another of $50 from citizens of Morgan. Still Morris could not be found. A little over a month ago Sheriff Fears heard of him in Atlanta, and at once took up his trail. He is now in the Savannah jail, and will be brought here to stand trial in September.

A singular part of the affair is the fact that the reward offered by the governor is out of date, or has been revoked, and will not be paid. A purse of $100 has been raised by the people, both white and colored, with which to bring Morris to this city.

MACON BEGINS TO LOSE FAITH. The Proceedings Against Banker Back

Put Him in a Bad Light.

Macon, Ga., August 11.—[Special.]—A telegram received in Macon today carried with it little doubt that Backer's failure was not exactly what it seemed at first. The telegram states that new suits to the amount of $300,000 have come forward against Backer, and fraud is generally claimed. It says he has clearly misappropriated collateral to the amount of these suits, besides $150,000 more represented by the suits already filed against him.

The telegram says Backer has as yet made no explanation, and all that is known is that some one is out and nobody in unless it is Backer. The hearing of the injunction in the Central bank case, in which several large notes are involved, will begin Friday. Counsel Untermeyer says other suits are yet to be heard from. The letter caused a great deal of comment those who have always insisted on making prohibition a port of the republican platform Today Higgins received a dispatch from The New York Voice as follows:

In your recent comments on the prohibition question in Kansas, did you simply say that prohibition, as a policy, should be abandoned, repealed, or did you mean simply that prohibition is a settled policy in Kansas, and on that account should be agitated no longer? reply: Your message just received. My position is that prohibition, being an accomplished fact, never will and never should be abandoned in Kansas, but being firmly engrafted in the constitution, and theilaws for its enforcement placed on the statute books, with an overwhelming majority against the repeal, the question should now be removed from politics and placed in the hands of the people, who will then, irrespective of party, insist upon the election of those men to office who will endeavor to enforce all laws. When the question is removed from politics, those favoring prohibition, but heretofore opposing it because of its advocacy by the republican party, will rally to the support of the law.

A great many republicans in Kansas share this opinion with Mr. Higgins. They believe that the continued agitation of prohibition does more to lessen the respect for the law and encourage its violation than anything else.

Bonds were issued by the company, running ten years and bearing 6 per cent interest, with interest payable semi-annually. It was cited in the contract that if the company should be come six months in default in payment of in-terest when due, then the whole bonded in-debtedness would become due at once. The Atlantic Trust Company, as trustee for the benefit of bondholders, filed a bill for the purpose of enforcing the mortgage, alleging that the South Tredegar Iron Company is insolv-ent and unable to meet its obligations.

A Case of Destitu A Case of Destitution.

Macon, Ga., August 11.—[Special.]—A terrible case of destitution is reported in Macon. There is an old man named Munch, a coffin maker, who lives in a house near the corner of New and Ocmulree streets, who is in abject want and in a starving condition and depends on his neighbors' charity to keep alive. The house in which he lives is his own and is valued at $3,000, and still he remains there in missay and want.

Mr. Graham Forrester, of Richland, Ga., was in the city yesterday.

Mr. Forrester was here for the purpose of negotiating for a newspaper outift, preparatory to starting a new weekly at Richland.

The newspaper is to be known as the Plebeian, and will be owned by stockholders, composed of the best citizens of Richland, and edited by Mr. Forrester.

It will be an eight column quarto and will Paper.

edited by Mr. Forrester.

It will be an eight-column quarto and will be a credit to what is bound to be a great town in the future.

Richland is situated at the junction of the Columbus Southern railway and the Savannah, Americus and Montgomery railway and has grown in four years from a crossroads store to a town of 1,500 inhabitants.

The Plebaan will make its appearance in about two or three wasks.

The Plebean will make its appearance in about two or three weeks.

Mr. Forrester made his debut to the paper reading public from The Constitution office. Since then he has been prominently connected with several of the leading papers throughout the state. He is a successful worker. A clever, entertaining writer and Richland will soon have a paper of which every one will feel proud.

meeting yesterday, decided by a vote of 15 to 9 to report favorably upon the bill, and if the report of the committee is adopted the old veterans of Georgia will have a home in which to spend their last days.

In the committee room there was considerable opposition to the bill, but its friends triumphed by the vote given.

Messrs. Humphreys, of Brooks, and Everett, of Stewart, opposed it in the committee room, but will probably agree to make the report unanimous. The bill was also opposed in the committee by Messrs. The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Delta Insurance Company was held here to-day. Henry T. Ireys was re-elected president; N. Goldstein, vice president; Thomas Mount, cashier of the First National bank, treasurer; J. Clarke, secretary; Henry T. Ireys, Dr., cashier. This company was organized two years ago. Its stockholders are among the staunchest business men of this section, and under the management of Marshall J. Willborn, the secretary and general manager, the company has done a presperous business. Mr. Willborn resigned his position to accept a position with the United Underwriters of Atlanta.

All for Crisp.

five alliance congressmen from Georgia are all for Judge Crisp for speaker!

We took the liberty of making this statement some time ago, because we believed that Messrs Livingston, Winn, Moses and Everett were all genuine Georgla democrats.

When the Hon. Tom Watson named four members of the Georgia delegation who would not support Crisp we promptly denied the report.

Then Livingston came out unequivocally for Crisp.

Yesterday we published Congressman Winn's utterances on the same line.

This morning our special from Cedartown shows that Congressman Everett is one of the faithful.

Mr. Lawson, an alliance member, is enthusiastically at work for Crisp.

The announcement made by Congress man Moses very happily rounds off the list of Georgia's alliance members.

These staunch democrats and loyal Georgians are the only members of our delegation who were elected as alliancemen. They are all standing by their party and their state-solid for Crisp!

It is all right, Mr. Watson. If you want to straggle between the alliance and democratic camps, representing nothing and in sympathy with nothing, just go ahead!

Under the circumstances there is nothing for Mr. Watson to do but to imitate Dundreary's bird, and go off and flock by himself!

Paternalism in Finance.

It is not easy to see why democrats, with their strong advocacy of the local self-government idea, and persistent opposition to the paternal theory, should in point of fact favor a paternal currency to the exclusion of any other kind.

Yet, thousands of democrats accept the national banking system forced upon the country as a war measure, and are unwilling to give it up for anything except perhaps, a currency system under which all the paper would be issued by the federal

Democratic home rulers, to be consistent, should be in favor of a local currency as a factor tending to make a community prosperous and reasonably independent. Their alleged reason for not supporting such a currency is that we had a number of wildcat state banks before the war. Admitting this to be true, we also had banks in a number of states, resembling, as regards the security of their notes, the present system of national banks. In New York and Louisiana the state endorsed and guaranteed the notes of banks incorporated under a general law upon an abundant deposit of the highest class of state or municipal bonds. This currency, as The Galveston News reminds its readers, never depreciated. Up to the war it circulated everywhere in the union, and even in Canada, at par with gold, and sometimes, being more convenient, at a premium. The objection to a local currency, especially when it comes from democrats, is strangely at variance with the popular idea of home rule and local self-government, and the main reason given in its favor is, as we have shown here, a mere pretext.

Another Cigarette Law Proposed. A common mistake in legislation is to enact a law that is too sweeping-too ex-

It is better sometimes to attempt the possible task of regulating an evil than to attempt the impossible task of extirpating it. An effort in the latter direction vexes the people, excites a spirit of resentment, and eaves the evil unregulated.

We have at present a statute forbidding the sale of cigarettes to minors. This is well enough. It is an entirely proper regulation of the traffic. But it is now proposed through a pending bill to prohibit the ale of cigarettes to anybody in the state.

Such a law cannot be enforced. It is in violation of the interstate commerce provision of the federal constitution, and according to the decisions of the courts cigarettes in original packages of any size could be shipped to any person or persons in Georgia from any point outside of the state. Under such a law Chattanooga, for instance, would loom up as a great cigarette market, and do a rushing business shipping cigarettes into Georgia. Our minors would then be forgotten in the general paralysis of law, and they would buy their share of cigarettes in the outside markets.

Why attempt the impossible and the im-

Dead letter statutes foster a popular feeling of contempt for a law. When a law is too sweeping or too extreme public opinion revolts against it, and it becomes a mockery, encouraging many to go a step farther and defy other laws. Aside from this view, however, we should bear in mind the fact that our present ciga-rette law in regard to minors is a sufficient regulation of the traffic. We can very well afford to let the adults alone in such a matter. Grown men will continue to use to bacco if they so desire, and the whole power of the state cannot prevent them. being the case, why not allow them to use tobacco in its least injurious form-so far as smoking is concerned-in the shape of cigarettes?

Recently our chemists here have analyzed cigarettes, and reported them to be free from onous adulterations. This should settle it. If grown men desire to smoke them it is their right to do so.

This sweeping law against cigarettes would, if enforced, simply play into the hands of the cigar men. A smoker unable to satisfy himself with a cheap cigarette, costing about half a cent, and containing scarcely any nicotine, would pay five cents for a cigar, and poison his system with a much larger quantity of nicotine.

We fail to see any genuine reform in that -anything in the interest of morals, health or economy. The best thing to do is to drop this bill, and do everything that may be necessary to strengthen and enforce the anti-cigarette law for minors, which needs no advocacy to commend it to everybody as a proper and prac tical measure. If we try to supplement i with injudicious, vexatious and extreme experiments, our good work in that line will be undone, and we shall be worse off than the Suwanee Canal Company. This company has been organized under the laws of Georgia to drain the Okefenokee swamp, on the border of Florida and Georgia. It is a grand undertaking, and great results are anticipated, and it will be but a short time before we will find out what there is in the swamp and what will be the result of its drainage. It is a singular fact that this swamp is on the same ridge that Atlanta is on. The waters from it run from the eastern side into the Atlantic ocean, and from the western side into the gulf of Mexico. It is filled with valuable timber, and when drained its owners expect to find the best of land and valuable deposits of the finest phosphate rock. Work will be commenced with vigor at once, and by the 1st of January we may expect to have facts about this swamp never known before.

We have never been able to draw out from any quarter a valid objection to a system of state banks of issue. The matter has been discussed in these columns from various points of view, but the only argument which those who oppose the system have to offer is the vague generalization that the people don't want any more wildcat institutions. This, it will be seen, is not an argument against state banks of issue, but is a simple declaration that the people can get along without wildcat banks; and it is a declaration that is perfectly true. The people do not want wildcat banks of any kind. It does not follow, however, that state banks of issue ever were or ever will be wildcat banks. The term cannot be applied to them without any reason or justice. What were known as wildcat banks were banks of sssue owned by individuals, and they were carried on under laws which did not provide for the regulation, inspection

The existence of wildest banks and the embarrassment growing out of them were not due to the system itself, but to the inad-

and control of the business, and which did not properly limit and restrict the issue of

It is to be borne in mind, too, that, in spite of the existence of wildcat banks, the ld system steadily grew in popularity. It adapted itself perfectly to all the demands of the people for an elastic currency. The circulation of these state banks of Issue rose from $105,000,000 in 1847 to $207,000,000 in 1860. Thus, in 1860 the volume of perfectly elastic currency in circulation was more than the present volume of national bank circulation, and the full significance of this fact may be realized when we remember that our business necessities are now about four times as large as they were then. It is only by making such a comparison that we can understand what an important part the circulation of state bank notes played in our circulation. One of the chief objections urged against the state bank system is really an argument in its favor. It is said that the notes of the banks would not be at par in every part of the union. We know of no higher recommendation. The greatest need of the people and business of the country at this moment is a currency that cannot be drawn to the banks that flourish on the edge of the Wall street whirlpool. Our greatest need is a local currency that will remain where it can do the most good, and where it is most needed. It is not true of the old state banks. however, that these bills were not at par away from home. The notes of the Bank of the State of Georgia and the Bank of South Carolina were as good in London and in Liverpool as they were at home. There is one feature of the state bank system which is worthy of notice, and attention has been recently called to it by Senator Horace Chilton, of Texas. The state bank circulation was based on the idea of the actual redemption of bank notes in specie. A state bank, for example, issued $20,000 in bills under the law. These bills would flow out through the local channels of trade and commerce in every direction, but as soon as they ceased to be needed in actual transactions, they would begin to flow back for redemption. They were intended, as Mr. Chilton shows, to be secure enough to pass at par in daily business, but not secure nough to be held 2,000 miles away with no thought of redemption. They were continually returning to the vaults of the bank that issued them, and were as continually put out to local borrowers again-so that there was always enough currency business and no more. It was a self-regu ating currency. There was always a return current from the cities to the country and

This is precisely where the national bank circulation is a failure. The security on which it is based defeats all idea of redemp-

to another. In other words it is not a flexible and an elastic paper currency, and it does not meet the demands of business as aptly as the state bank bills did. It is as poor as gold, and it collects in the money centers, leaving the rest of the country to get along the best it can. Under the old Under our present system the money sharks of the north and east can con tional progess than the north.

When the fact is considered that we have built up the free public school system among us since the war, this result is certainly wonderful as well as gratifying. But our northern friends seem to be under the impression that the south was almost entirely without educational facilities before the war. The fact is we were better equipped for higher education than the rest of the union. On this point Dr. J. L. M. Curry says in

The Richmond Religious Herald: Much misapprehension and ignorance exist among cultivated people in reference to the status of education in the south before the war. Academies and colleges abounded. By census of 1860 the population of the north was about nineteen million, and of the south about eight million, one third of whom were slaves. At this time the north had 205 colleges, 1,407 professors and 29,044 students, while the south had 260 colleges, 1,488 professors and 27,055 students. Dr. Ruffner, in his report as state superintendent of education in 1872,said that Virginia, considering the white population only, had a larger proportion of her sons ulation only, had a larger proportion of her sons in superior institutions of learning probably than any state or country in the world, and, including the n population, she was first on this continent, second only to Scotland among all nations. The University of Virginia in ante-bellum days, had a higher standard for the degree of master of arts than any other institution in the United States.

All the states north and south should hang the neads in shame for their criminal neglect of the higher education of women—for grossest injustice in discriminating against the weaker sex; but to Georgia, I believe, in her charter of the Female college," in 1836, is due the honor—no small one—of being the first civilized state in the world to incorporate an institution with power to confer baccalaureate degrees on women From this it will be seen that the old outh had no cause to be ashamed of her educational record.

But that rumor has been a sweet morsel and has been rolled under so many tongues that, like a piece of wiregrass beef, the more it is chewed the larger it gets. But I came very near forgetting to tell you the contents of that rumor. The Hon. A. T. MacIntyre, Jr., of Thomasville, wants to go to congress. The Covington Star tells this good fish story, which is credited to an Atlanta man. The story was told on a Richmond and Danville train while the Georgia editors were returning home. Here is the story as related by "the Atlanta man:"

*The gentleman in question had gone out in his boat to fish in Mobjack bay. Throwing his line over the side of the boat, he dropped his hook in the water and soon felt a pull at the bait. On attempting to draw up the line he was surprised to find it held down by something unusually heavy. After considerable hauling at the line, however, he succeeded in drawing to the surface a heavy he succeeded in drawing to the surface a substance, which proved to be a large jug,

"Oh, he had caught a blind tiger instead of a fish?" exclaimed The Star, with increasing in-

"No," said he, seriously enough, "it was not a blind tiger, but a real fine fish had hold of the hook, and the fish was in the jug! You see, the fish had got into the jug! You see, the fish had got into the jug when it was little, and had grown too large to get out again. The mouth of the jug was open, but the fish was too large to get out was open, but the fish was too in through it. With due respect to all, I remain yours, etc.,

Of Mr. Calhoun's speech before the general as-sembly in the interest of the Savannah river, The Times, of that city, says: "The selection of Mr. Calhoun to make this address was an excellent one, and it was peculiarly appropriate. Very few recall the fact that this ent which Savannah is now makin its inspiration from Mr. Calhoun. It was in this way: One night early, in last June, he was coming down to Savannah from Atlanta. He and Mr. Charley Hill and a Times representative were the occupants of the smoking section in the sleeper. In reply to a question from sleeper. In reply to a question from The Times representative as to what Savannah most needed to make her a great city in a little time, Mr. Calhoun said with emphasis: 'Deep water to the sea.' He then suggested that a river and harbor congress should be held in Savannah. These ideas were elaborated in an interview which The Times published the next afternoon. On the following morning The News published an anterview with Mr. Calhoun on exactly the same line. Strong editorial endorsement was given to the views of Mr. Calhoun and the leading men of our own city, and the result was the meeting which Mayor McDonough called and which authorized the appointment of the executive committee."

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

A Rejoinder to "A West End Tax-Payer," from J. Henly Smith. I have read your dull remarks about the con munication in Sunday's Constitution, which addressed to you. I discover only two things the have any sparkle of genius; these I proceed notice.

You say I have borrowed my main argument from "Home Ruler." In this assertion you have furnished the best evidence of my charges; that you are "illy fitted" to give advice; that you are thoughtless, and do not comprehend a sound argument, and cannot draw a sensible conclusion you are "inj there to give aurone, man you are thoughtless, and do not comprehend a sound argument, and cannot draw a sensible conclusion from given premises.

Note that you make this assertion without any quasification. Now what are the facts?

"Home Ruber's" article appeared in THE CONSTITUTION of Saturday the Sth. I have not the slightest idea who the author of that short article is. I wrote my communication on Friday the 7th, and handed it to Mr. Wallace P. Reed, one of the editors of TRE CONSTITUTION, during the afternoon of that day, expecting it to appear Saturday morning; but it was held over in the office one day and did not appear in the paper till Sunday morning. These are the exact facts, I did not borrow the argument.

I have written considerably for the press since I have written considerably for the press at 150; this is the first time I have eyet been unsed of plagiarism or "borrowing" from oth You and fault with me because my middle as rotated like a hump on a came!" back. This rery strong argument in favor of annexing Westend to Atlanta. I rather like it, as an objection to the separate existence of our municipality. Respectfully submitted, J. HENLY SMITH. West End, Ga., August 11, 1891.

Atlanta as an Educational Center.

EDITOR CONSTITUTION—Atlanta has had good schools, but it is a business city and has failed to read its rightful position as an educational city. New schools now are likely to add much to its character in that regard. The Military institute, the Southern Female college of Professor Cox, and the splendid Agnes Scott institute at Decatur, added to those already in existence, will greatly improve the facilities and the reputation of Atlanta for learning. And now, what next?

The Presbyterians are a historic people in the matter of education. The North Carolina Presbyterians have a first-class college with eight

The Presbyterians are a historic people in the matter of education. The North Carolina Presbyterians have a first-class college with eight or ten professors, large buildings and a good endowment, known widely as Davidson college, on the railroad which runs from Charlotte to Statesville. This institution is over fifty years of age. At Columbia, S. C., Presbyterians have a well-endowed theological seminary. A movement is now on foot to unite the Presbyterians of North and South Carolina, Georgia and Florida, possibly others in the erection and endowment of an institution which is to be placed on a much larger basis than that of a mere college, to be known as the South Atlantic university. How much can be done in merging the above-named institutions into this university is not yet sure, but the four squads of the Carolinas Georgia and Florida have appointed a board or regents with Rev. J. B. Shearer, president of Davidson, Rev. Dr. G. B. Strickler, Mr. S. M. Inman and others as members of the board and this board met in Augusta a month or more ago to Davidson, Rev. Dr. G. B. Strickler, Mr. S. M. Inman and others as members of the board and this board met in Augusta a month or more ago to receive bids for the location. Bids from Augusta, if I mistake not, and from four or five other places were more or less definitely before the board. The best formulated bids were probably from Asheville, N. C., and from Spartanburg S. C. Representatives from these places, Presbyterians and citizens of other faiths, who know the worth of such an institution were present, and it is safe to guess that a quarter of a million was it sight. The board hesitated and was pressingly plied with the request: "Just say what you will accept—name the terms that will bind you." They decided not to bind themselves and adjourned to meet in December.

They decided not to bind themselves and adjourned to meet in December.

These things are settled. The Presbyterians of these four states will have a South Atlantic university now as soon as arrangements can be perfected. It will be one of the very best universities of this country, will have professional as well as academical departments, and now where are the people of Atlanta as they look at this enterprise? To add such an institution to others now springing up here will give to the city educational advantages and a fame for intellectual culture which will in that line be equal to its royal fame for business, intelligence, plack and success. Students of both sexes should be—can be brought here by the thousand through each coming year from every climate north of us and south of us.

success. Students of both sexes should be calc brought here by the thousand through each coming year from every climate north of us an south of us.

The first thing needed to locate this particula university in Atlanta is a splendid site. Around this will grow a city within a city. Next after that will be an endowment. This will come in, o a considerably large part, from sources outside of Atlanta, but if Atlanta can hope to get this university it will have to "talk up" beyond a quarte of a million; nevertheless the city will be roundly and rightly paid for all that is invested by it people individually or collectively. The bi should be ready to be before the board at its December meeting and there is no time to be lost Rev. Dr. Strickler is out of the city for a few weeks. Communications or suggestions can be deposited with Mr. Inman, or in case of his absence, anything addressed to Rev. J. N. Craig D.D., 66½ Whitehall, would receive proper direction.

Rev. Walker Lewis Writes a Card.

Rev. Walker Lewis Writes a Card.

EDITOR CONSTITUTION—The writer of the communication signed "Atlanta," in yesterday's paper, has certainly been perfectly consistent with the conviction he expresses in the sentence: "It is no use to reason with these extremists." Were he to plead his own cause on an indictment for reasoning with them, it is obvious he would get a verdict of acquittal.

But a man may be perfectly consistent, and not be wise. "Atlanta" does not stick to the text though he does to himself. The question the "comparative stranger" dealt with in regard to the car line work on Sunday, is not the mayor's action, but the company's lawlessness. Far less is it a question of personalities. The mayor did what he honestly believed, as an officer, he ought to do, and no man who knows Colonel Hemphill can believe him capable of intentional wrong-doing. But all who honor and admire him as a Christian gentleman—few if any exceed the writer in this respect—if thoughtful, will surely allow him liable to err. I think the work permit proof of the fact. While the mayor did what he felt called upon to do for the protection of the city's interests, I dissent from his judgment, abating nothing; because of that fact, in a high estimate of his manly worth. But the company—what would "Atlanta" have us believe they worked a hundred hands for last Sunday? To protect the south side property holders? If he thinks that, then I have to say that while I said the city of Atlanta is morally retrograding, I am sure this "Atlanta" isn't at least, in that "charity which believeth all things," even themost improbable corporations are not very mindful of it in the next. Nevertheless, "Atlanta" had some ground and some trolley, too, for this idea, because the company was so much are not very mindful of fire in this world wisely regardful of it in the next. Neverthele:
"Atlanta" had some ground and some trolley, to for this idea, because the company was so mu concerned about giving the fire department acce to all parts of the city, that they actually tried get both the road bed below and the trolley over head ready for the engines to drive over the But their haste to deliver the city from danger giving the engines two open ways, one over t track and the other over the trolley, was grea hastened, I have no doubt, by the fact the Sund morning CONSTITUTION reported as follows: between Whitehall and Broad, and on Broad street between Hunter and the bridge, as it is the street between Hunter and the bridge, as it is the desire of the company to have this paving completed before Monday, in order that the schedules may be started tomorrow morning, if possible. On account of the importance of the work, and as the ordinary traffic on the streets during the week retards its progress, consent was given and the job will probably be completed today."

"Atlanta" waxes warm because "a comparative stanger," who has been here only "about six months," and who has "no knowledge of the facts," "recommends the prosecution of good men doing their best to protect life and property in an emergency."

months," and who has "no knowledge of the facts," "recommends the prosecution of good men doing their best to protect life and property in an emergency."

"Comparative stranger" denies every counting in this indictment. There was no emergency; and the engines could have been on the Broad street bridge if there had been. They were there Monday. Neither did he "recommend the prosecution of good men." Sabbath breakers are criminals, and criminals are not good men. The roadworkers and the company were not trying to "save life and property;" they were after more money. Besides all this, "comparative stranger" is not "without some knowledge" of facts to sustain him in thinking and justify him in saying that the city of Atlanta is "morally retrograding." That has been its habit since the return of barrooms and resulting sot. Anybody can smell enough of them in six hours to know it, not to speak of other tolerated and growing evils. Wherever there are five times as many hells as churches, there is moral retrograding. These are the things that have blackened the fair name of this city, and continue to blacken the lives of some of her children, the advocates of law would save and brighten, the subvected her fair name of this city, and continue to blacken the lives of some of her children, the subvected her fair name of the right. These barrooms, and sabbath breaking, and crime against the family, are tolerated. I, for one, will not be known as a conservative but as a revolutionist. Conservatism wherever evil prevails, means "Let the devil have all he has got, and help him get more." I am going to resist his getting more, or holding what he's got.

As to running the city, the men who disapprove of Sabbath breaking don't want to run it. But they are determined that it shall not be run by corporations and greed. They want it run in accordance with the statutes of the state and of God. Asking no more they will stop at nothing less, demanding as their right, that no privileged classes shall lord it over the Sabbath. Corporati BOITOR CONSTITUTION—Seeing so many cards in your paper expressing the sentiments of people who thought things were not going right, it gives me courage to speak of a grievance that is more or less public—the telephones! Atlanta has always had the poorest system of any city in the country. I don't know whether it is from the incapacity of the managers here or from the attempt to make money for the company by giving us the cheapest service. Our service has always been very miserably defective, but now is added neglect in the office. Who has a book for July?

A Reader Makes a Suggestion.

And when a new one comed out, who ever saw such negligent printing? There are about as many pencil numbers as there are printed ones. We must have relief. Suppose we ask the legislature to put them under the railroad commission, along with the telegraph companies. What is a greater monopoly than this very telephone, and who is more lordly in the unjust exercise of power?

The telephone is reaching out to all the towns—the whole country is interested. Gentlemen of the legislature, place this monopoly fust where you put the others, and receive the silent praises from the quiet but observing citizens who are watching and applauding your efforts to redress our wrongs. AFTER THE GOVERNOR. The Southern Alliance Farmer Arraigns Him in Great Shape.

The Southern Alliance Farmer is after mor Northen again. This time they charge him with being possly ignorant, or with a willful violation of the state constitution.

In the last edition of the paper, which came out yesterday, an editorial one column and a half in length appeared, and in it the governor was arraigned as being guilty of one of the two charges named.

The cause of the editorial and the spicy arraignment of Governor Northen, was the ap-pointment of Hon. W. Y. Atkinson as attorney to represent the interests of the state before the Western and Atlantic commission. The appointment of Mr. Atkinson, says

The Alliance Farmer, is an open violation of the state's constitution which Governor Northen had sworn to protect. The reason the appointment is a viola-tion of the constitution is that Mr. Atkinson is s member of the legislature, and article 3, section 4, paragraph 7, of the constitution, exsection 4, paragraph 7, of the constitution, expressly says:

Nor shall any senator or representative, after his qualification as such, be elected by the general assembly, or appointed by the governor, sither with or without the advice of the senate, to any office or appointment, having any emolument amnered thereto, during the time for which he shall have been elected.

"This section," says The Alliance Farmer, "remains unchanged. Yet," continues The Alliance Farmer, "in open defiance of this exploit declaration W. J. Northen, governor of Georgia, either through gross ignorance or Georgia, either through gross ignorance or willfully and intentionally, has violated an in-strument that he solemnly swore to observe and protects.

willfully and intentionally, has violated an instrument that he solemnly swore to observe and protect.

There was never a more flagrant violation of law by the criminals in our penitenitary, and who tre beseeching executive clemency! How can Governor Northern expect to be respected by law-breakers when he himself is one, and uses the power voted him by the people to overthrow the undamental laws of the state?

But what was his conduct toward the gentlemen who came to Atlanta, at his invitation and their was expense, to attend the world's fair convention? After bringing these delegates to Atlanta and getting them to commit themselves in favor of our state voting an appropriation of $100,000 to the Chicago fair, the governor discovered that he was in a hopeless minority. Did he stand by the convention that he himself had convened, and engraft their request in his message to the legislature, in whose power it was to make the appropriation? No, He saw that his little scheme to take this large sum from the public till would fail, and he didn't have the courage and manhood to stand by his convictions and his friends. That act conclusively proved to the world that W. J. Northen has just about as much backbone as a twine string.

The question is, did the governor violate the constitution of the state of Georgia.

Dining Car Service. General Manager Tyler, it is understood, is arranging what will be a popular change on the Atlanta and West Point.

It is to run the dining car of the southwestern limited through from Atlanta to Montgomery. It now stops at Atlanta.

Under this arrangement passengers can take supper between Atlanta and Montgomery on the southbound trip, and get breakfast between the same points.

As it now is the departure from Atlanta is too early for supper and also leaves Montgomery too soon for breakfast.

West Point Officers At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Atlanta and West Point road, officers and directors for the ensuing year were

The only change in the directory was the retirement of Mr. Jacob Phinizy, who was succeeded by Mr. Stuart Phinizy.

C. H. Phinizy was re-elected president of the company and H. M. Abbett secretary and General Manager Tyler will continue to make the West Point one of the best and most popular roads that come into Atlanta.

President Weed, of the Middle Georgia and Atlantic, has issued his first circular announcing the fact that the company has assumed control and operation of its road between Eatonton and Machen. Mr. J. A. Droege is appointed superintendent with office at Eatonton and has the management of the operation of the road. The first of the harvest excursions advertised for the 11th and 12th, left yesterday over the Georgia Pacific and West Point and Louisville and Nashville to Arkansas, Texas and Mississippi points. A large number of people took advantage of the one-fare rate.

Mr. C. N. Kight, assistant general passenger agent of the East Tennessee, at all times pleasant and smilling, is now more affable than ever. He fairly shines with delight, and it is all because his office in the airy heights of the Fitten building has been turned inside out and made to look as luxurious and inviting as any lady's boudoir.

The Sunday travel on the Western and Atlantic is wonderfully heavy this year. It is almost all the road can do to take care of the business, so popular are the different stations along the line for people who want to get out of town for a breath of fresh air.

The Chattanooga Southern and the Louisviffe and Nashville have opened up a new line from Chattanooga to Montgomery and New Orleans via Gadsden and Calera, and a solid train is now run from Chattanooga to Calera.

ARRESTED FOR LABORNY AFTER TRUST.

Mr. W. S. Carroll Arrested for Appropriating Money Belonging to His Granddaugh-ter, and Beleased on Bond.

Mr. W. S. Carroll, once a well-known Atlan He was arrested yesterday charged with larceny after trust. He is accused of taking $2,000 from his granddaughter, that being the amount of in-surance upon the life of his son.

It's a story arousing sadness. a long time was a well-known member of the firm of Love, Clayton & Carroll, and was a popular and well-known citizen of Atlanta.

At the death of his son Mr. Carroll was appointed guardian of his little granddaughter, Jessie Carroll. He thus had entire charge of the property left her. Among the assets was a life insurance policy for $2,000, which amount was promptly paid by the Knights of Honor.

It seems that this is the money appropriated by Mr. Carroll. When called before the ordinary of the county to show the whereabouts of the money, and the other property left his granddaughter, he could not produce the money. He admitted that he had spent it, but did so with the intention of returning the full amount. He needed money, and, instead of borrowing it from somebody else, took that of his ward.

somebody else, took that of his ward.

At this he was removed from the place of guardian, but no steps against him were taken, he promising to return the money as soon as possible, Mr. B. F. Wylie standing as security for its payment. Mr. A. C. Wylie was appointed guardian.

Not long afterward Mr. Wylie resigned, and the present guardian, Mr. J. J. Woodsides, was appointed.

With these changes, things stood as they were up to yesterday. Mr. Carroll had never made good this shortage, and yesterday was arrested on a warrant for larceny after trust.

He was in Atlanta at the time and was carried at once to the police station.

HALF RATE TO TEXAS

- AND RETURN -AUGUST 11TH AND 12TH OVER THE OUEEN AND CRESCENT ROUTE

THE LARGEST BILL.

ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING OF THE Show—Two Trains Necessary to Bring It to Atlanta.

The largest three-sheet bill ever printed in Georgia is now being finished in THE CONSTI-TUTION job office for the great event of '91, and will be one of the modes of conveying to the public the grand aggregation of attractions and exhibits. The bill will be posted by the side of the pictorial stand from the Metropolitan job print, of New York, and the colors will be so blended as to make it correspond in every particular with the great lithographic design which is being used by the exposition this year and will convey in words what the Metropolital bill conveys in pictures.

This is the first bill of the size that has ever n printed in the south with the exception of New Orleans, and reflects great credit upon the workman, as the demand for this work is so small that opportunity rarely presents itself for a display of this class of printing.

The matter on this bill is compiled from the various answers to Mr. Cohen's proposition for catch lines with which to advertise the exposition. The first page of the three sheet bill his own, and the second and third pages will be from the pens of the prize winners, those names will be announced as soon as the bill is finished.

LOOKING AT THE BILLS. The stands of bills that were put up yester-day around the city attracted a great deal of attention—especially the one on Broad, near Peachtree street, where crowds gathered nearly all day looking at the closing scene in "King -and much and favorable was the mment of the bystanders as they saw the huge bills covering the walls.

It is a remarkable fact, too, that the first time King Solomon was put up in Atlanta, it should cover the bills of "Alabama." The strange part of it is that "Alabama" is the matic hit made during the past season and King Solomon the greatest hit in the out-door spectacular line ever made in the world. COMMITTEE MEETING.

There was a meeting yesterday afternoon of the executive committee.

A delegation of colored citizens appeared before the committee, requesting prizes, etc., for a military contest during the exposition. The committee did not feel justified in acting on this matter, but it will be brought up be fore the next meeting of the board of direc-

THE QUESTION OF MUSIC. The question of music was also agitated, and nmittee was very favorable to home talent. However, no decision was reached It is more than probable that the president will himself be urged by the board to visit New York so as to see the attraction of King Solomon. At the same time the necessary arrangements could be made for the transportation of the grand spectacular from New York to Atlanta. This of itself is no small matter, as it will take nothing short of two trains to transport the

IT WAS A CANNON.

Hon, William Clifton Receives a Cannor from a Constituent.

Yesterday afternoon a large dry goods box was unloaded from an express wagen at the capitol, addressed to Hon. William Clifton, representative from Chatham. He paid the freight and signed for it with a

"What is it, Bill?" a half dozen of his brother legislators asked.
"Incominally realied Clifton.

"It's gophers," laconically replied Uliton.
"It's watermelons," said one member.
"It's a plan for the reapportionment of the state," said another.
"It's oysters," said still another.
But Mr. Clifton held to his original statement.

"It's gophers," he said.

A hatchet was procured, and one of the porters delegated to open the box.

About fifty people gathered and peered eagerly at the negro as he began to pry off the lid.

Everybody was wondering what it could be.
The negro lifted off the lid from the box, and the astonished bystanders exclaimed, "It's a cannon!"

"It's a cannon!"
And it was. Bright and shining as new gold, it looked very warlike, indeed.
"Yes," said Mr. Clifton, "and that cannon was made by a farmer boy in my county and has been pronounged by experts at West Point as being faultless."

"A how made that are a said to the sai

"A boy made that cannon!" exclaimed Bob Lewis, of Hancock.

"Yes, not a single hand was laid on it except his. He is a student of the technological school here and his father sent it here, not because he wanted to get up a little notoriety, but to show you what the technological school is doing."

Many old confederate veterans who had faced cannons in desperate conflicts drew near and examined the bright new cannon.

"It's the prettiest one I ever saw," said one of them, "and I've seen lots of 'em. It's a beauty, sure."

Bob Lewis moved that it be taken in and placed on the speaker's desk. The motion prevailed, the cannon was carried in and all yesterday afternoon it was sitting up there pointing straight at the door.

"What's that caunon here for?" Mr. Davis, of Burke, wanted to know. "To run the legislature home?"

The cannon is certainly a beauty, and reflects a reasonative.

The cannon is certainly a beauty, and reflects great credit on Ernest Davis, the seven-teen-year-old boy who made it.

THE VETERANS' FAIR

Years ago gray ranks were seen on the streets of Atlanta. In the early part of the war the uniforms were new and brilliant; at the end of the war they were, only remnants of what they had been.

The forms which wore the rags were just as manly as those which wore the new suits years before, and now that the hairs of those men have turned gray, they wish once more to wear the gray uniforms before their long journey is finished.

It is for that purpose the fair is held—to.

wear the gray uniforms before their long journey is finished.

It is for that purpose the fair is held—to furnish uniforms for Company A, of the Confederate Veterans. Many of them—most of them, in fact—are unable to buy these uniforms, and it is the hope of the veterans that they will receive the generous help of the public at large.

The Gate City Guard has freely tendered its armory to the veterans, and the other companies will probably be just as generous.

The veterans wish to see once more the gray ranks as they march through the streets of Atlanta. It will be a pleasing and inspiring sight.

ETCHED AND SKETCHED.

Undoubtedly one of the largest families in the state is that of Mr. J. D. Godard, the ember of the house from Jones county.
"You would think," said Mr. Godard, "If you were at one of our family reunions, that everybody in the whole county was related. We have a family reunion yearly, and from early in the morning until dinner time the people gather at my home, and by noon there are over a hundred present, all of whom are relatives. We all live near together, and have always lived in Jones county, where most all of the present family were born. Our reunions are always most pleasant, and several of our friends who have been present with us have enjoyed the occasion highly."

I want to see a law prohibiting aliens from holding property in the state, and I hope some such bill will be passed at this session. Most of the other measures in which I was interested have been passed, and I would now like to see this one go through."

The other night I was coming in on the chautauqua train from Lithia Springs. Seated by me was genial Alex Thweatt, and as our train came thundering along out near the Ex-position cotton mills, he said:

"Pretty soon the engineer will blow his whistle for Atlanta, and when he does you just listen right close to see if there is anything peculiar about it."

"Why should there be?" I asked. "Well, you see," said he, "most all of the engineers on this road live around close by here, and every one of them has a signal of his own, which follows the long blast they blow on nearing the city, and which lets their wives and children and sweethearts know they are safe. Now, you just listen at him when he blows. I think Taylor's running tonight. I can tall when he blows." can tell when he blows.'

can tell when he blows."

The train rushed on past the scrubby oaks, which looked like dim specters in the gloom. Presently a long, loud blast from the engine awoke the midnight echees. Louder and louder it grew, when suddenly like the moaning of some great thing of life the blast ceased and was quickly followed by several short, quick blasts in rapid succession.

"That's Taylor," said Mr. Thweatt, breaking into a smile, "and his wife knows he's safe."

—Civil Engineers Meet.

The Atlanta Society of Civil Engineers held a regular meeting last night. The society is now getting well organized. Topics of interest to engineers were discussed. Several amendments to the constitution were proposed, and will be acted upon at the next meeting, September 8th. Mr. J. F. McPherson was elected treasurer. Assistant State Geologist C. C. Anderson was elected a member. A meeting will be held August 25th to discuss matters of interest to engineers.

Wholesale Swindling.

Mr. A. Frank Richardson, of New York, in his recent address in St. Paul, Minn., before the National Editorial Association, called attention to the fact that druggists all over the country are continually defrauding their cus-tomers by offering them imitations or substitutes for various patent medicines, thus also swindling the proprietors of such medicines who have created the demand by extensive advertising. This practice of substitution by the druggists has grown to such an extent that Mr. Richardson invokes the aid of the newspapers in its exposure and defeat. But no one should allow themselves to be thus swindled, especially in the purchase of Simmons' Liver Regulator, the great remedy for Indigestion and all Liver troubles. RAILROAD COMMITTEE HAS BEGUN INVESTIGATING.

It was appointed under a resolution introed in the senate by Mr. Ellington for the arpose of investigating the leases, charters of contracts of the different railroads in Georgia to see if the law had been violated. They were empowered to summons before them persons interested in the railroads, to have papers brought before them and to employ a stenographer.

Senator Collaway moved that a stenogra-pher be appointed to do the work of the committee when one was needed. This was agreed to by the committee.

Mr. Pat Calhoun and Mr. Jack J. Spalding were present as the representatives of the West Point Terminal Company.

Mr. Calhoun was called upon by the committee to produce the leases, charters and contracts held by the West Point Terminal Com-

Mr. Calhoun presented to the committee the following papers: Charter of the West Point Terminal, charter of the Richmond and Danville, with amend-ments, and lease of the Georgia Pacific to the Richmond and Danville, and the lease of the onthwestern railroad. Mr. Calhoun stated that the other papers had been given to the joint committee appointed to investigate the charters two years ago, and had never been re-turned. He said that Mr. Berner was a member of that committee, and might something about the papers.

"Mr. Bartlett, of Bibb, hadithem," said Mr. Berner, "and I think the last seen of them they were in the hands of the printer."

"That is a mistake," said Mr. Jack Spalding, "for I was present when the printer ed the bundle, and they were not in it." Mr. Calhoun said he would telegraph for copies and would have them before the last of

"There is one word which I want to say in justice to myself," said Mr. Calhoun, "and to the interests which I represent. I was oposed to this resolution simply and solely up the ground that the financial situation of this ountry was in a very delicate condition, and that I knew-what you gentlemen did not of the serious attacks which had and which were being made upon us, and which have since been made public in the press It seems proper to state to this committee that the information had reached me that those attacks were being circulated in Wall street and that the action of the Georgia legislature was being held up as a threat against the credit of this system. For that reason I opposed this resolution. Since the legislature has seen ifit to pass it I propose to furnish you every paper ion that you have called for. in our possession that you have called for. Since the investigation is to be made, I desire that it be made as full and complete as it is possible to make it. The railroads feel that they have nothing to fear from the most com plete and thorough investigation; that the only langer to them is in the prejudice of the pub lic, arising from misapprehension of what they are attempting and trying to do. One word further, that I ought to say to this committee and to the public, in instice to the number of interests that will be affected by this investigation, and that is, that I have no doubt that we shall be able to thoroughly satisfy the minds of this committee that what we have done has been within the law, as understood by some of the most able counsel of the state. You go into in investigation of the Southwestern lease, of the Georgia railroad lease and the Savannah and Augusta railroad lease, and of these conmany years, and which affect a great many stockholders and people in Georgia, who are constituents, and whom it is my pleasure and desire to represent, and I desire to say that through you they need feel no apprehension in regard to the perfect security of their investments, because I feel that this committee will have to stand where we stand in upholding these contracts. This is a matter of the gravest importance, one that calls for most careful and thorough research, it affecting the investments of the stockholders and business people in Georgia, and further than that, it affects every general interest in this state. We hope that the committee will take the matter up, go through it carefully, and call upon us without hesitation for any assistance that we can render them in the conduct of this investigation. We desire further to call your attention to the laws under which these contracts were made, the special provisions of the general laws as they relate directly to it. And if the question is raised as to the constitution-ality of these contracts, as to whether these contracts destroyed competition, we shall desire to produce fully before you the evidence relating to that fact, to show you that we have done nothing that can be construed into

"Mr. Calhoun, I want to say to you gentlemen on the part of myself and the committee that we are here in no spirit of prejudice, but with a desire to see justice done to all parties.' Mr. Calhoun replied that he was always willing to give credit to those who differed with him as being actuated by just as good motives as his own, and he assured the com-mittee that in every way that lay in his power he would co-operate with the committee in bringing about a full and complete investiga-He said there was a concerted effort being made by the trunk lines of the east to injur the credit of the West Point Terminal. common talk in brokers' offices on Wall street that the present Georgia legislature was antagonistic to railroads. Mr. Ellington said: You say you are being fought; what particular system is fighting you?"

Mr. Calhoun replied that even if he knew definitely, it would not be a good business policy to specify.

"Well," persisted Mr. Ellington, "is Mr.

Gould fighting you, or is he with you?"

Mr. Calhoun smiled and all the committee laughed outright.

"Well, I can't say where Mr. Gould is," replied Mr. Calhoun. "He has never made me

Mr. Calhoun said among other things in conversation with the committee that every thing that had been done by the road had been done under the advice of eminent coun-sel, and that the committee would have to sustain all the contracts that had been made, but that if after full investigation any doubts remained in their minds he intended to propose to them that they submit the question to the people. The work of establishing a great railway system in the south-east was the most important indus-trial movement ever made in the southern states. It was of vital interest to every class of citizens and of vital interest to the mercial equality of this section. If the committee should conclude that there was still any doubt about the entire constitutionality of everything that had been done, he wo suggest the submission of the question to the people in order that it might be finally and definitely settled by them.

He was not afraid to face the He was not afraid to face the people of the state on the issue, and was satisfied that they would uphold and maintain his position. The more the question was discussed the better it would be for the railroad interests. He was working for the good of the people, and he was satisfied that they would sustain him.

The committee occupied the remainder of the afternoon reading the leases and contracts submitted by Mr. Calhoun.

The adjournment was subject to the call of the chairman. The committee will be occupied about fifteen days in doing their work.

THE CRIMINAL LAWS.

THE COMMITTEE APPOINTED TO IN-VESTIGATE THEM.

An Important Report-A Resolution Offered in Regard to Them-ColonellE Williams Talks.

The committee on criminal law revision have submitted their report.

And an important one it was. It makes certain recommendations which, if carried out, will change the status of these aws and make them nearer perfect.

The report is an important one and has been made after a careful study and thorough investigation by the committe of which Mr. Williams was chairman, into the criminal laws of the state.

The full report is given here: A joint resolution of the house and senate hav-ing passed at the fall session, 1890, appointing a joint committee of five from the house and three from the senate to investigate and determine the necessity for and the advisability of a revision of the criminal laws of Georgia, beg leave to make the following report:

We find that the nenal laws of Georgia ware

the following report:

We find that the penal laws of Georgia were codified in 18te and again in 1817. This included both the common law and statutes. Again there was a revision in 1833, which was itself a revision of 1817. We have not had a revision in fifty-eight years behind in this important work. That revision was necessary was early admitted for nearly all offenses were under the common law, and almost every felony was punishable with death. As soon as we had a penitentiary, we immediately revised our criminal laws and codified them.

mediately revised our criminal laws and codined them.

We believe that the advanced times in which we live demand progress in the provisions of our laws, and that a revision of the criminal laws is absolutely essential, and requires attention from this general assembly.

We find that punishments are not proportioned to crimes, and that there are many small larcenies made heavy fetonies. The whole subject of larceny after a trust needs revision, also larceny from the person, also the subject of manslaughter and many others, especially the subject of forgery.

We find that it costs the taxpayers of this state thousands of dollars to try these felonies, which are probably misdemeanors, that, for small offenses, our penitentiary is filled with unfortunate persons. Justice to them and justice to the state requires a revision of many rash statutes.

Statutes. We therefore recommend and earnestly urge that a joint resolution be passed authorizing his excellency, the governor, to appoint three competent attorneys to revise the said criminal laws. We also recommend that the said criminal laws be bound in a separate volume know as the penal laws of Georgia. laws of Georgia.

The report was submitted after a thorough investigation, and was formulated at the meeting of the committee on last Monday

It was seen that a revision was absolutely necessary, on account of the great expense to which the state is now put to trying cases as felonies, which ought to come under misde-

In pursuance of this report the following resolution was presented by Mr. Williams, and was referred to the general judiciary committee:

committee:
Resolved by the house, the senate concurring.
That his excellency, the governor, be, and he is hereby, directed to appoint a commission of three compelent attorneys of this state, who shall have full power to revise and codity all the criminal laws of this state, and to make their report to the general assemby for approval and adoption.
Those who have heard this report have remarked upon the importance of some measure which would accomplish the desired results. This resolution seeks to carry out the recommitment of the recommitme This resolution seeks to carry out the recommendation of the report, and will in all probability be passed immediately, so that the commission provided for may report to the general assembly before it adjourns.

Colonel Williams Talks. Colonel Eb Williams, chairman of the crim inal law revision committee, was seen by a Constitution reporter yesterday. "What are the reasons for the necessity of this revision?" was asked. "The state of Georgia is over fifty-eight years behind in revising her criminal laws," said Mr. Williams. "It has been twenty-six years since the war, and we have the same old statutes on our statute books that were in force then. As Judge Bleckley said of Blackstone, 'There is much monumental literature therein,' so there is much of this nature in our code. Did you know there are statutes there in reference to negro slavery, et cetera? These statutes are, of course, not in force, but why cumber the statute book? "The northern press is continually telling us that our laws are traps to catch a certain class of unfortunate negroes and poor whites for the penitentiary. It does look that way, and we must do justice to the criminal as well as to the state. "Do you know small larcenies are made heavy felonies? It costs the state of Georgia $100 a day to hold the superior courts, and frequently a case involving 50 cents, with some element of larceny after a trust connected with it, costs the state $100 to try the offender, and the poor unfortunate offender goes to the penitentiary for three or four years.

"This is an important bill. As chairman I found the committee unanimous on recom-mending that the revisers have the criminal laws bound in a separate volume, known as penal laws. The revisers will have to report back to the house, and they will pass upon their report." From the above, the importance of this measure will be readily seen, and it is probable that the revision will be begun shortly.

THE NEW YORK STOCK MARKET. The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

Exchange.

NEW YORK, August 11.—Dullness was again the most prominent characteristic of the stock market today, but there was a sharp rally in the forenoon, which was not maintained later, and the final changes for the day are in almost all cases insignificant. The really in the face of moderate selling by London was entirely due to the covering of shorts, while the offerings of stocks from domestic sources were unusually small. Movements of importance in the list were very few in number. The general list was dull and featureless, though the sensation of the day was a drop in Richmond and West Point preferred to 49%, against 56 as the last sale of last week. Special weakness was seen in Tennessee Coal, but the general tendency among railroad stocks, where any fluctuation was apparent whatever, was upward; but trading in the general list was so dull that no feature could be seen other than those mentioned. Selling by London made Louisville rather weaker than other leading stocks. While Rock Island was the strongest on the list, and While Rock Island was the strongest on the list, and while the early rise was material, the greater portion while the early rise was material, the greater portion of the improvement was lost before noon, and late in the day the selling of Union Pacific and Louisville and Nashville was resumed on a larger scale, the former especially weakening under the pressure. Its best figure of the forenoon was 364, but it touched 324 before the close, and ended at the lowest price. The late dealings developed some support in a few stocks, but the entire list felt the effect of the extreme weakness in Union Pacific, and everything yielded in sympathy. the entire list felt the effect of the extreme weakness in Union Pacific, and everything yielded in sympathy, many stocks reaching their lowest for the day at the time. The corn roads made a specially stubborn resistance to the downward tendency, but the market closed quiet and heavy to weak at or near the lowest prices of the day. The final changes are generally small fractional losses, but Union Pacific is down ¾ and Louisville 1 per cent. Sales of listed stocks, 139,000 shares; unisted, 4,000.

a more depressed feeling, owing to lower prices from London and the very unsatisfactory reports in regard to the supposed Union Pacific syndicate. The latter stock continued to be the center of interest, scoring another decline of 3 per cent for the day on the firs positive reports that a receivership was inevitable. reports that a receivership was inevitable, tone would be appointed within the next ten and that one would be appointed within the next ten lays. While it is our opinion that this Union Pacific scare is being worked for all it is worth, and that in the end it will not be found necessary to appoint a re-ceiver, so long as its future remains in doubt it will continue to demoralize values, and Ithere is little hope for any improvement. In the general list, as soon as the Union Pacific troubles cease to be an element of disturbance, either by means of a receiver or by the actual establishment of the proposed syndicate, we look for a rapid recovery, and we have no hesitation in advising our friends to follow the market downward in their purchases. The government crop report, published late yesterday, shows a most favorable state of affairs, while the heavy exports assure us of a good foreign market for our surplus and at hig prices. Money continues easy. With the Union Pacific troubles out of the way, we think the last obstacle to the long-expected bull market will have been removed. ue to demoralize values, and Ithere is little h

NEW YORK, August 11—[Special.]—Manchester spiners bought moderately today in Liverpool at 1-15d lecline on the spot, while the arrival market, under he influence of weak American markets, closed easy at 6 points decline. Our Manchester advices report a air demand for the East Indies, brought about by the recent rains in India and the decline in cilium. fair demand for the East Indies, brought about by the recent rains in India and the decline in silver. Locally our market opened slightly easier and improved, closing, after a very quiet day, at 3 points above yeaterday's final quotations. Considerable interest is manifested in the result of the liquidation of the low grade cotton remaining here, which is only tenderable on August contracts, which do not appear to be in demand. The interest in the market has been greatly reduced during the past week, and the market waits upon crop advices and receipts. A slightly better Liverpool market is anticipated by the trade tomorrow. English board of trade returns for July show an increase in exports of 7,000,000 pounds of yarn and a decrease of 45,000,000 yards of cloth for the month, while to date there is a decrease of 8,000,000 pounds of yarn and a decrease of 45,000,000 yards of cloth as compared with last season.

NEW YORK August 11—Liverpool this morning

"and at a decline of 6-64d, which was just about a few days, the market should suddenly again have become so exceedingly narrow. It seems, however, as if, with the recent sharp fluctuations, the market has fairly liquidated its interest, while our operators seem inclined, before entering into more extended operations, to abide further developments of the crop, which may give us but moderate fluctuations for the time being. The weather advices through the south indicate a favorable outlook for the crop. All in all, it appears as if the recent bullish feeling would receive a decided check unless some adverse reports again come to hand. At the same time, however, with the advices which we receive, we feel that it is fairly safe to buy cotton at about these prices.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO. August 11.—The bulls took charge of the wheat maket today and kept the bears dancing most of the time. Potent news around the opening was bullish. The government crop report was interpreted as bullish, but the European situation was looked upon as so decidedly bullish as to more than counterbalance home conditions. There were heavy buying orders from New York and St. Louis, and as offerings were limited, prices were sharply advanced. After the flurry caused by the execution of these orders was over and the market began to manifest a tendency to sag, t was given a new, strong impetus upward by a series of cablegrams to some of the larger houses, saying at first that Russia would prohibit the exportation of rye from the empire after August 27th, and later that it had issued a decree of prohibition to go into effect on the 16th instant, and to continue for one year. When this news was first mooted it met with little oredence, the 18th instant, and to continue for one year. When this news was first mooted it met with little credence, but as the house which first received it bought heavily on the strength of it, and as other houses receiving the same advices ranged themselves on the buying side also, the smaller shorts became panic stricken and rushed to cover, valuesjadvancing rapidly amid considerable excitement. December opened ragged at $1\frac{1}{3}(\text{C}\text{C}\text{S}\text{Q}\text{S}\text{Q}\text{S}\text{Q}\text{S}\text{Q}\text{S}\text{Q}\text{C}\text{A}\text{C}\text{A}\text{S}\text{Q}\text{S}\text{Q}\text{S}\text{Q}\text{S}\text{Q}\text{S}\text{Q}\text{S}\text{Q}\text{S}\text{Q}\text{C}\text{A}\text{C}\text{S}\text{Q}\text{S}\text{Q}\text{S}\text{Q}\text{S}\text{Q}\text{S}\text{Q}\text{C}\text{A}\text{C}\text{ and then on the report of the Russian rye export prohibition jumped to 30c. At this point late cables announced better weather on the continent and some decline in Paris, and the shorts having pretty well covered, there was a drop to $2\frac{1}{2}\text{C}\text{C}\text{T}\text{E}\text{D}\text{C}\text{ this continent and some decline in Paris, and the shorts having pretty well covered, there was a drop to $2\frac{1}{2}\text{C}\text{C}\text{T}\text{E}\text{C}\text{T}\text{E}\text{C}\text{T}\text{C}\text{T}\text{E}\text{C}\text{T} excitement; and, saturated receipts for tomorrow being light, there was another rush to buy, which sent December to $3½c. It took another drop to $3c, then boomed upward again, again touching $9½c amid much excitement, wavered a little, receding to $9½c, and then, in the last 15 minutes under free covering by big shorts, who had been holding out, went humming to $5c and closed from at $4½c. The fact that the amount of wheat on ocean passage had increased 1 385 cond of wheat on ocean passage had increased 1,856,000 bushels during the week had no apparent effect on prices. Four car-loads of new spring wheat were received today.

Corn started in rather weak, September being variously quoted at 58%@68%c, against 59c at the close yesterday, but the strength in wheat and light offerings of corn, and the fears of the shorts who suspected manipulation by the bull clique, generally accredited to New York speculators, some caused a sharp advance to 60½c. The market then eased off some, but during the last hour started up again, selling to 60½c. It then broke to 80½c, at which twice it closed. The feether was nervous, and prices went up and down spasmodi-cally, but the undercurrent was very strong. Oats were quiet but strong in sympathy with corn. Provisions did not sympathize to any extent with the excitement in grains. The range and close was at about outside figures, and at small advances over yes-

CHICAGO, August 11.—In anticipation of a bearish government report, there has been some free selling during the past week, expecting a decline. The report, however, was generally construed as being more avorable to holders than to short sellers, and today brings reports of the exceedingly bad condition of the European crops and the export demand from abroad for our food products. It has been confirmed that the Russian government has prohibited the erp relation of rye for one year. Germany and other European countries which have always drawn large supplies of food from Russia will have to look elsewhere for it. Between the competition of the shorts and the exporters this has been the most active day we have, had for a long while. With the exception of a few reactions, the market has been very strong, closing more than 3c per bushel higher than yesterday. We think the advance a little too sharp, and, should the market open at today's closing price or higher tomorrow, we think it reasonable to look for a reaction. day's closing price or higher tomorrow, we think it became free sellers, the market closing easier at only a shade higher than yesterday.

Cash corn and oats, however, were in good demand, the former closing about ½ higher than yesterday.

The rye situation was favorable to holders here, and is making life very uncomfortable for the shorts. It is probable now that the course of the rye market will be governed by the export demand.

The provision pit was very much neglected, and at times deserted. Prices closed a shade firmer than yesterday. A great portion of the speculative interest on the board is centered in wheat.

WYNN'S ASSIGNMENT. BOPERTY TURNED OVER TO PRO

TECT HIS BONDSMEN.

Bond-Meeting of the Trus-tee Stockholders.

J. O. Wynn, the defaulting business agen the state alliance exchange, turned over enty-four thousand dollars' worth of prop-eventy-four thousand dellars' worth of prop-ty to his bondsmen yesterday.

This assignment was the only development a special interest that occurred.

Colonel Broughton, who is now performing duties of the office, with an expert selected by the bondsmen, will go through the books today and compile a statement of Mr.

Wynn's total shortage.

Yesterday some work on the books was done

the amount of the shortage.

Colonel Peek, however, said that he hought the thorough investigation would how that the shortage would be about twenty-one thousand dollars.

When the defalcation first became known it was thought that Mr. Wynn would very probably be placed under arrest, and yesterday the possibility of such a turn of the case was discussed very generally on the streets.

But it is now almost positively settled that

Mr. Wynn will not be dealt with by the law, nless something of a more startling nature than present developments indicate is dis-

It was stated yesterday that the bondsme delity company, which has joined the other had agreed to this course, including the Finen in accepting the assignment of property made to secure them by Mr. Wynn.

The Property Assigned. As stated the total amount of property surned over to the bondsmen by Mr. Wynn pesterday is $74,000.

His bond is $50,000 and the estimated shortage $21,000, so apparently the bondsmen will ose nothing:

The following is a schedule of the property signed to the bondsmen: Life insurance policies, aggregating $30,000.

Mr. Wynn himself will give no satisfactory explanation. He says there has yet been no thorough investigation of his books and he simply asks that the public withhold its judg ment until that is done.

And as to his speculation in futures.

One of his bondsmen, and a close personal friend, says Mr. Wynn denies this in the strongest terms, and that to his knowledge he never in his life invested a single dollar in grain or any other sort of future buying.

This same gentleman, speaking for Mr. Wynn, also states that Mr. Wynn not only made no false entries on the books of the exchange, but in fact never even touched them. He says the books are all in charge of a bonded bookkeeper, and that Mr. Wynn never authorized or directed him to make any but perfectly square and legitimate

It was in the sum of $50,000, and was amply satisfactory to the exchange. The bond was practically given Saturday, but was not filed and formally accepted until yesterday.

Colonel Broughton's tenure of office as agent is for a brief space only, unless he is ratified by the new board of directors which is to be elected so.

Next Tuesday the county trustee stockholders of the alliance exchange hold their annual meeting. They will then elect a new board of directors, with whom rests the appointment of the business agent.

THE ANTI-FIRE INSURANCE BILL.

House.

EDITOR CONSTITUTION:—I have not seen anything lately in your valuable paper in reference to the bill now pending in the legislature to prevent insurance companies forming combinations for pools for keeping up the rates on buildings and merchandise, and other properties in the state of Grorgia. On making inquiries in certain sections about this natter, I am informed that some certain parties who are interested are endeavoring to get the legislators who live in the small towns and country districts to oppose the bill because it will not do their sections of the state any good, and that it is really intended to benefit people who live in the larger cities and towns. This morning I accidentally heard a conversation among some insurance men, in which the statement was made by one and agreed to by all the pent was made by one and agreed to by all the ment was made by one and agreed to by all the other that if any rates were reduced at all, because of this legislation, it would be confined entirely to the five larger cities of the state, and as there were not many of the companies doing business in the small towns and in the country, they would have no trouble in putting up the rates. For myself, I have no doubt this is true, and yet at the same time I think it is a perfect outrage that the legislators from the country and small towns should lators from the country and small towns should allow themselves to be used in opposition to this legislation simply because it will benefit only the citizens of the cities and large towns. I also un-derstand the alliancemen in the legislature are derstand the alliancemen in the legislature are being worked upon on this line, and the parties moving in the matter are using the fact that the bill emanates from Rome, Ga., and certain attorneys are paid to stay in Atlanta and urge its adoption. They also claim, and doubtless very truly, that the three representatives from Rome, Ga., who were elected as "Jeffersonian democrata" in opposition to the farmers' ticket, are the strongest advocates for the adoption of the proposed measure. I know this is true, because I found out that the Rome representatives are determined to do everything in their power to have the bill passed, and I think I is nothing less than a shame that the members of the alliance in the legislature will allow themselves to be worked upon to the extent of opposing this legislation, simply because the Jeffersonians from Floyd county are in favor of it. Another argument is being made against the bill, in the line of its hurting the Georgia companies, because the most of their business is confined to the limits of this state. Now I, as well as many others, are interested in property in Atlanta, and am not a stockholder in any of the Georgia companies, and I do not see any reason why we should not have legislation that will give us lower insurance rates, even if the capital now invested in these Georgia companies has to be retired from the business. Is there any justice in making $50,000,000 worth of real and personal property in Atlanta pay high insurance rates simply because some of our people have invested their money in the stock of these insurance companies? I have written all this on the ildea that if this bill is made a law, we will be able to get lower rates than we now have, and on that line I am free to say I have very serious doubts. I honestly believe the insurance rates will not be reduced anywhere in the state, and I only sappear in print because of what I believe to be a very unjust proceeding on the part of those in opposition to the legislature will allow themselves to be used i being worked upon on this line, and the parties moving in the matter are using the fact that the bill emanates from Rome, Ga., and certain attor-

Do You Know How It Feels? Rheumatism. Every one has heard the word "How's your mother?" "Oh, she's well except her rheumatism." How carelessly the answer is given. Do you know how it feels to have rheumagiven. Do you know how it feels to have redumatism? Oh! it's terrible, the swelling and the excruciating pain of ankle, knee, elbow and shoulder, just as if each point was a bundle of irritated nerves, each one seemingly bent on giving more pain than the other. Laying awake all night, longing for daylight, aching too severely to sleep,
applying liniment every half hour to temporarily relieve the agony. Fraying, cursing, turning, twisting, but no ease, no comfort. What is it that causes rheumatism? Ah, there are a thousand causes. What is it that cures rheumatism? Thank God, there is at least one cure. It is called B. B.
B., or Botanic Blood Baim. It has cured more cases of rheumatism than any other known remedy. Try it. Do not suffer longer.

J. H. Laing, Dawson, Ga., writes: "I suffered with rheumatism in my shoulders and general debility. Five bottles B. B. B. improved my health and the rheumatism left me.
J. P. Davis, Atlanta, Ga., (West End.), writes:
"I consider that B. B. B. has permanently cured me of rheumatism and selatica."
Jacob if. Spencer, Newnan, Ga., writes: "B.
B. B. entirely cured me of rheumatism in my shoulders. I used six bottles.

A SPECIAL TRAIN.

Atlanta and West Point Railroad Company and What It Will Do

for Manchester.

Beginning Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, the Atlanta and West Point railroad will run on Thursdays, Saturdays and Tuesdays of each week a special train to Manchester, leaving the union depot at 10 o'clock a. m. and returning at 1 o'clock depot at 10 o'clock a. m. and returning at 1 o'clock p. m. This train has been put on for the accommodation of the people who desire to go out to Manchester and investigate that place for themselves. This liberal arrangement of President Tyler's will doubtless be the means of many people visiting this new and delightful suburb that would not otherwise do so. A special rate will be given on this train.

The Atlanta and West Point railroad will not be found backward in doing anything that pertains found backward in doing anything that pertains to the development, upbuilding and prosperity of Manchester. In a short while a regular hourly schedule will be put on, and the fare each way will be only 5 cents.

Tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock a large num ber of capitalists and home-seekers will visit Manchester, and if you feel an interest in the Manchester, and if you feel an interest in the place and want to investigate it, take the special train and go down with the crowd. The ride is a delightful one, and when you go out there and see what a beautiful place Manchester is, how cool its breezes, how pure its waters, how delightful its shade, in all probability you will purchase a lot or buy some of the stock.

Since the Georgia Military institute and the celebrated Southern Female college have decided to locate there, the prosperity of the place is as-sured. No less than one hundred lots have al-ready been sold, and some of the most prominent business and professional men of the city have purchased them with the view of residing there and educating their children.

The stock in the company, notwithstanding these stringent times, is rapidly being taken. Mr. Eugene Blalock says in all probability every subscription will be in before September 1st. This being the fact, shows that Manchester is destined to be one of the best suburban cities in the south.

Mr. Mountain is going ahead surveying his new line to that place, and by the time frost falls on the leaves, it is the intentien to have an electric car running from in front of THE CONSTITUTION building to Manchester.

special train leaves the union depot for Manches-ter, returning at 1 o'clock, and all who desire to know more of this place can take that train and spend a couple of hours looking around. South.

OPEN THE ENTIRE YEAR.

THIS HOUSE IS THE MOST DESIRABLE IN the south for persons who need rest and medical attention. No hotel in Asheviile has as well furnished rooms and its cuisine is unequaled. Only in the case of patients is the diet regulated. The table is an important feature of the sanatorium. Elevators, open fire place, electric lights and bells, music hall, billiard parlor, tennis court, etc.

The water is pure and plentiful, coming from a large, limpid spring near by. The sanitary arrangements are as perfect as care and money can make them. Persons suffering with throat and lung troubles are greatly benefited by a stay at this place. The medical management is under the diection of Dr. P. W. Neefus, recently of the Jackon sanitorium, at Danaville, N. Y.

The sanatorium is thoroughly equipped with modern appliances for the scientific relief and cure of all nervous and chronic diseases. The bath departments are new throughout and are under the supervision of competent and skilled attendants. The methods of treatment include all forms of baths, the medicated vapors, Turkish, electric, Russianj Roman moliere, thermo-electric, electrochemical, massage, electricity in all its forms, also Swedish movements. Green's horse and buggy a short time ago, were up for trial. South was found not guilty, but Gray received a sentence of ten months. A little negro, scarcely ten years of age, was up for having entered the house of Mr. N. A. Martin. He was given eight months.

Joe Hall, a negro about twenty-five years old, was on trial, charged with having assaulted Anderson Wood with intent to murder. Wood had been beaten with a stick and cut with a razor, on July 18th. No one, besides the two men themselves, was on the stand. The whole trial lasted less than twenty minutes, and the jury remained out but a mo ment, bringing in a verdict of guilty. Hall was sentenced to hard labor for fige years.

Annie Smith was found guilty of larceny from the house. She stole some bacon and flour from N. B. Blount this month. She will be found in the chaingang for the next twelve William Battle received a similar sentence for having entered the stable of Dr. G. G. Roy on July 4th, and having stolen goods from it. He pleaded guilty.

Dallas R. Borders entered a plea of guilty of burglary. On August 1st he broke into the house of Mr. B. F. Johnson. He was given John Stewart, his partner, was the one who stole Dr. W. S. Elkins's surgical instruments

He pleaded guilty and was sentenced for fifteen years. Tom Leonard was accused of having broken into a boarding house on Houston street last May. The jury brought in a sealed verdict and Tom will not know his fate until this

Southern School of—18 E. Hunter Street,
Atlanta, Ga.—Telephone 526.

We have 500 graduates in positions, some receiving $1,800 per year, others making $3,000 a year. Good shorthand writers are in demand Schools advertising to graduate (their pupils in three months and guaranteeing positions are frands. The average time gequired is from four to six months. The prominent and responsible po:ttons the managers of this school have held in rall, and circles and elsewhere are influences conducive to the great demand made upon us for shorthand writers. We have 250 graduate sholding positions in this city. We have three shorthand teachers and an expert typewriter teacher. Our school is open from 8% m. to 6 p. m., daily. Lessons given by mail also. Catalogue free.

Occupies the entire second floor at 49 Whitehall St., Atlanta We teach the simplest as well as the most legi-ble system of Shorthand ever written, in fact, the system is so simple that it can be taught success-and we make a specialty of giving lessons in this way to persons who cannot come to Atlanta.

Mr. W. B. Kennedy says: "I am well pleased with the progress I have made through your splendid method of mail instruction. I think the system taught by you is so simple that any one can readily understand it."

Mr. H. E. Cook says; "I am very much pleased rith your method of teaching by mail, as well as
